Question	Answer
Hi, can you remind me of the first speaker's name (who was teaching in Mexico City) and the specific Fulbright award he was on?	Hello! His name is Dennis Plane, and he did our U.S. Studies Award.
Can I secure an invitation letter to any major university in Mexico or are there only select universities and particular regions? I would like to try the Yucatan area. I used to live many years ago in Guadalajara, so a different area would be great to teach in my area of research(mental health and wellbeing for teachers and students) or to teach ESL. I am qualified in both areas.	Hello! Only the TEFL and U.S. Studies Award are institution limited.
For the teaching scholar awards, to qualify would I currently need to be a professor at a home institute?	Hello! No. You need only have teaching experience on your CV.
Along that line, is it correct that research can be partnered with any university but teaching is limited to the 4 major university networks mentioned before?	Hello! No, since the TEFL award is not limited to those four universities; only the U.S. Studies Award is limited.
Could give some tips for reapplication? Will it be read by the same people that read last year's application? Should we talk about the fact that it is a reapplication or is it better not to mention that?	Hello! Every application is a new application; they do not know if you have applied before. Also, there are always personnel changes, so it may be new people.
Do all of the Mexico awards require a home institution?	No, independent scholars are welcome to apply!
Should course syllabi be in English or Spanish?	Hello! All applications materials should be submitted in English.
Is there any difference for the application process for the postdoctoral award? How competitive is the postdoc award?	Hello! The application process for the post doc award is the same. Unfortunately, due to FFSB policy, we cannot speak about the competitiveness of the awards.
Are there any awards for collaborators/teams?	Hello! All awards in the Fulbright U.S Scholar Program are individual awards.
