Why I Chose to Apply

Professional Development: Challenge myself to globalize my curriculum and better prepare my students to be engaged global citizens.

Sustained global academic partnerships: To create research, writing and other collaborative projects with global colleagues which would enhance my teaching and scholarship.

Cultural Ambassadorship: Embark upon a mutual exchange of understanding of a unique culture in the world's largest democracy.

Engage in social justice issues: To demonstrate the use of paralegals to increase access to the law and justice in an array of fields.

Bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs

The Use of Cooperative and Collaborative Pedagogy to Teach Law Courses

Lecturer: Advanced Contracts Law: A Comparative Analysis-
Indian and American Law.

Workshops: Collaborative and Cooperative Teaching Pedagogy for faculty.

Curriculum Development: Provided one on one consultation regarding creating new legal modules.

Student Advisement: Relating to law and educational opportunities in America.

Bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs

Personal Impact

Globalized Curriculum: Revised my curriculum to include research and writing modules regarding India for an ongoing American/Indian legal and business comparative analysis.

Global Ties: Long term academic relationship with interdisciplinary colleagues in science, sociology and workforce development skill training.

Cultural Ambassadorship: : Fulbright would provide a unique opportunity to represent the diversity that exists within America, as a Puerto Rican American Community College professor.
